Scenario – Oak Tree Nurseries

Oak Tree Nurseries is a large organisation based in Wales which provides a range of services offering high quality childcare from birth to 5 years of age.

The founder of Oak Tree Nurseries believes that children thrive in a healthy environment, and places great emphasis on promoting this in all of his childcare settings. He does this by only serving organic produce at mealtimes, providing large outdoor areas in all of his settings for gross motor play and exercise, and regular participation in healthy eating schemes.

All of the Oak Tree play environments are set up to maximise learning experiences, ensuring smooth transition between activities and access to the outdoors.

Child observations are used to inform planning of future activities and play environments to ensure a child-centred approach.

It's Monday at 8am and the children have started to arrive at an Oak Tree Nursery setting. As the children arrive in the pre-school room (ages 3-4) they are warmly greeted by the staff and each child is responsible for finding their own name card and for placing it on the register.

The staff have ensured that the environment looks stimulating, inviting and is suitable to meet the needs, interests and preferences of all the children in their care.

When Tom, aged 4, arrives in the room, he is a little reserved and appears reluctant to join in; he was very upset to leave mum. Tom has recently started at the setting. He was referred for an audiology assessment and everything was fine, so he is currently undergoing assessment for speech and language outside of the nursery. Tom's key worker Kate is fully aware of this and has been attending regular meetings with Tom's mum and other professionals to ensure a multi-agency approach and co-production.

Tom takes Kate's hand and she lets him guide her to the construction area. Kate sits with him for a while, interacting and encouraging the play by picking up tools and starting to build a structure. Many of the other children see this and eagerly join Kate and Tom and start to create a wall from the blocks. Tom soon starts to relax and plays co-operatively with the other children. Tom then starts to initiate play by moving on to the sand area as he wants to dig for treasure. To enable this, Kate gets jewels and coins to place in the sand.

Kate is seen spending a lot of one-to-one time with Tom throughout the day, whereas other children do not seem to need so much support. Kate attempts to communicate with Tom by engaging him in conversation and using positive gestures such as smiling and using a thumbs up signal.

Once all of the children have arrived, they are all guided to the mat for Circle Time. Kate ensures that Tom sits at the front as he often struggles to hear. Then the team leader, Lucy, sings the daily 'Bore da' (good morning) song and all of the children join in. Lucy then discusses the weather using lots of incidental Welsh throughout and outlines the activities on offer for the day. The children then freely choose which activity they would like to take part in.

One of these activities involves healthy eating during which the children will prepare a snack by washing, peeling and cutting some fruit. The children who choose the healthy eating activity go to wash their hands in readiness to prepare a snack.

During the activity the children make decisions about which fruit they would like to prepare and also engage in conversation about their favourite fruits. The children are given clear and age appropriate instructions on how to prepare the snack. The activity leader works with a small number of children at one time and also uses picture clues alongside the verbal instructions. Kate continues to support Tom one-to-one during this activity. She repeats instructions directly to Tom.

Ayisha, aged 3, decides to go over to the role-play area and starts to set up the table. She matches all of the coloured dishes and asks Steve, the nursery nurse, to sit with her. She then asks Steve what he would like to eat and writes his food order on her pad. Other children start to join in and Ayisha starts to take their orders. Steve notices that Ayisha is able to write her name independently followed by numbers 1 to 5. Steve notes this down on an observation sheet.

When the session comes to an end, the children pack away their equipment and meet back on the mat to discuss the day's activities. Lucy gives every child an opportunity to say what they've enjoyed doing that day. There are also photographs available to represent the activities to support the children.

Once the children have left, the staff are all required to evaluate the play environment that they have been working in during the day and based on Steve's observation of Ayisha, the staff decide to change the role-play area to a café.

Scenario – Flying Start

Flying Start is a Welsh Government targeted early years programme which is available for eligible families with children under 4 years of age, who live in some of the most disadvantaged areas of Wales.

As a result of the extension to the areas in which Flying Start is delivered across Wales, a number of new childcare providers have been contracted, one of which is 'Little Gems' based in one of the South Wales Valleys.

The core elements of the Flying Start programme are drawn from a range of services that have been proven to influence positive outcomes for the children and their families who attend the settings.

These core elements include:

- free quality, part-time childcare for 2-3 year olds
- access to an enhanced Health Visitor service
- access to Parenting Programmes
- opportunities to support Early Language Development.

These core elements are delivered by a number of teams which differ in their structure and purpose, but all work together for the same positive outcomes.

Little Gems management team has spent the past 20 weeks registering its provision with Care Inspectorate Wales (CIW). This has involved producing robust and workable company policies based on current legislation to meet the national minimum standards, whilst also respecting the children's rights under the United Nations Convention on the Right of the Child (UNCRC).

The new manager has been appointed and has had to develop appropriate job roles, produce new job specifications, advertise four new posts, interview and appoint suitable individuals. They have also needed to prepare the environment to ensure that it meets the needs of the children due to start at the setting when it opens and launches the programme.

In order to fill the four new posts the manager conducted formal interviews as well as practical interviews, which took place in one of the existing well established Flying Start settings.

During the formal interviews, the manager needed to find out about each of the interviewee's experience in early years and childcare, as well as getting a feel for their values and beliefs and how they would draw upon those to support the children's well-being. During the practical interview it was important that the manager could see the interviewee engaging with the children and staff, demonstrating ways of working that support a child-centred approach. Following the interviews, the manager was able to appoint a floor leader and three nursery nurses.

Little Gems has now been open for 2 weeks; in this time all four new staff have completed a week's induction period which has taken them through:

- the aims of the Flying Start programme
- their job roles
- company policies and procedures
- the importance of confidentiality
- abiding by the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR)
- duty of care policies and procedures.

The staff have been introduced to working with Flying Start Health Visitors, as well as the inclusion team and are now fully briefed on the role of partnership working, as well as the strong emphasis all settings place on a child-centred approach.

Sixteen places have been funded and the children are being integrated into the setting, allowing adequate time for them to settle.

Rosie, the floor leader, has been asked by management to start putting together planning for the environment. Rosie calls a team meeting in order for staff to contribute; each staff member is asked to bring any observations on the children along to the meeting, as well as any evaluations on activities already carried out. They use this to ensure that a child-led approach to planning and reflective practice is taken.

Another staff member, Ben, who has been assigned the role of Welsh language officer, suggests that incidental Welsh is used more regularly throughout the environment. Rosie asks Ben to plan methods to develop the staff's Welsh language skills in order to move this forward, whilst also supporting the language choice of children at Little Gems.

At the end of the staff meeting Rosie explains the importance of supervisions and that these will take place at the end of the month.

She provides each staff member with a form to complete before attending the supervision, on which they are asked to think about and record information on their practice and consider their continuing professional development.

As there had been a few issues in the press recently in relation to inappropriate use of social media e.g. "What a long week at work, can't wait for it to end #kids #stress", Rosie decides to introduce the new social media policy to each staff member during supervisions. The policy states that staff are to maintain professional conduct at all times. Each staff member is required to sign and date the policy.

Assessor's Comments:

Scenario – Malik

2016: Malik was born in his home town; Malik's mum Sarah and dad Idris are both 16 years old. The couple are heavily supported by Sarah's mum who they live with. Sarah's mum is currently on an alcohol dependency programme and is doing really well. Sarah is happy to see her mum doing well as, when she was growing up, she was often left to fend for herself while her mum was drunk.

2018: Malik is now 2 years old, dad is no longer present and Sarah has left her mum's house due to her mum's continuous battle with alcohol dependency.

Sarah is currently living in a hostel awaiting a Housing Association house to become available.

Sarah has been struggling recently with her living conditions as well as dealing with Malik alone. She has been given information by her Health Visitor about training sessions run by the parenting programme which provide crèche facilities for Malik.

Before starting at the crèche Sarah is required to complete a registration form which asks about Malik's preferences, culture, beliefs, family composition, medical history and address.

By the 3rd session, crèche workers notice that Malik is often hungry when he arrives, and he will often ask them for food. As they are experienced staff, they are concerned that this may be something they need to keep a close eye on.

Parents are asked to bring along a piece of fruit for their children to eat during the two hour session but Malik's mum has forgotten to bring something each time.

2019: Malik is now 3 years old and is attending his 10th session at the crèche; mum has explained when dropping off that Malik will be collected by her new partner who is also with her on the drop off. Malik seems extremely distressed which is unusual. Mum notices this and quickly explains that he woke early and is tired. As the staff take Malik into the playroom he struggles to settle and starts to say, "I don't like him, I don't like him."

One member of staff, Dan, has a very good relationship with Malik and he soon manages to calm and pacify Malik and encourage him to join in with some activities. However, when playing in the home and family corner Malik becomes extremely aggressive with the dolls. He shouts, "Get off me, get off me." Dan, decides he needs to spend a little more time with Malik during the session. Dan does not question Malik but ensures he is available for him to talk to.

Malik seemed to be fine towards the end of the session, however on collection Malik becomes even more distressed than he was to begin with. This seemed to be a reaction to him being collected by mum's new partner. Malik screams as he leaves the setting. The Staff refer to their safeguarding procedures.

Malik returns the next day, dropped off by mum as mum is attending a five day course to help her access more suitable employment. The crèche worker who accepts Malik into the setting notices bruising on mum's arm and thinks that mum seems a little quieter than usual. Mum is quick to tell the workers that Malik is not his usual self and that, "he's been jealous since meeting my partner as it's only been me and him and we have also recently moved into a new house."

Malik's mum also reported that Malik had had a fall the previous night and had been taken to the local Accident and Emergency Department. He was limping slightly but there was no further treatment needed.

During the session Malik again seems to be a bit out of character and once again plays aggressively with the dolls and he even starts banging two dolls together.

Dan, who has already discussed Malik with his room leader, knows fully what is expected of him in his role. He again stays close to Malik to support him during the session and ensures that he will have time to listen when Malik wants to talk.
